DARVEAU RETURNED

COULD NOT BE HIRED TO REMAIN IN THE EAST.

Was Six Weeks at the World's Fair and Other Points in the East and in Canada—His First Visit to That Country in Eleven Years—Found Much Real Ignorance of the West—No Place Compares With Pendleton in His Opinion, and He Returns Contented.

"I wouldn't trade Pendleton and the St. George Hotel for the entire East, and be compelled to live there," is the way George Darveau expresses it to the East Oregonian today.

Mr. Darveau returned yesterday from a six-weeks' visit to Montreal, Canada and Keesville, N. Y. This is his first visit east in 11 years and he finds many important changes in the people and the cities, which he formerly knew. Montreal is a beautiful and progressive city, he says, the streets having been widened out and the parks and public squares beautified.

He went from Pendleton to Chicago, where he was joined by his sister, who visited the St. Louis fair in company with him. He greatly enjoyed the fair and was amazed at the size and scope of it. He thinks it outclasses the Chicago fair in many particulars and is the greatest collection of the world's wonders ever brought together.

From St. Louis he returned to Chicago with his sister, and then went to Keesville, N. Y., where he has a nephew, Dr. Chabaneau, who is a prosperous physician, whom he visited for several days, and then went to Montreal, his old home and birthplace.

In an absence of 11 years he finds that many of his old friends have passed away, and younger ones grown out of memory, but he enjoyed a pleasant visit with several old schoolmates.

His brother-in-law, residing in Montreal, will visit Pendleton next year, on his way to Portland to attend the Lewis and Clark fair.

Mr. Darveau says hundreds of people in the East would gladly come West if they knew the opportunities here. They are ignorant of the West. They imagine it is unsettled and wild and that people would starve or perish from other causes if they ventured this far from home. He found no place in the East, nor in Canada, which compared to Pendleton in the amount of business done, nor in the opportunities for settlement, or increase in property values. He is content to stay in Pendleton.

TRIBUNE'S "FRESH" NEWS.

Morning Paper Swipes an Article on the Switzer Horse Range a Month After This Paper Printed It.

On October 8, the East Oregonian published the first description of the Switzer horse range, ever published in the inland Empire. It was an original article prepared at considerable time and pains, and was widely copied by papers all over the Northwest.

Among the papers reprinting the article without credit to the East Oregonian were The Dallas Chronicle and the Walla Walla Union, and yesterday morning, a month and five days after the readers of the East Oregonian were given the interesting article, the Morning Tribune copied it from the Walla Walla Union, without giving credit to the East Oregonian, but used it as an original story, headed with a personal mention of William Switzer.

The readers of the Tribune are thus kept a month behind the procession, even in matters of local news.

Officer to Be Courtmartialled.

The court martial appointed for the trial of Major Rees, it is said, will not meet until November 15, says the Walla Walla Statesman. Yesterday was the regular date set for the convening of the court, but as both sides have some further evidence to procure, the meeting has been deferred until a later date. It is possible that Lieutenant Rancourt will also be given a hearing before this court. The charge against him is said to be absence without leave. He left his post on leave of absence, and for some reason he overstayed his time a few days.

Portland Court Etiquette.

"Cut out that lady and gentleman part of it," said Judge Hogue yesterday in court in Portland. Everybody who comes before me is a lady or a gentleman and it gets tiresome." Good for the judge. There's no reason why "lady and gentleman" should be used to such an extent anyway, either in court or outside of it. What's the matter with man and woman? There can be no higher title than these.—The Dallas Chronicle.
